The screenshot shows the TumbleBook Library interface. At the top, there is a logo for 'TUMBLE BOOK LIBRARY' and a language dropdown set to 'English'. A navigation bar includes links for HOME, INDEX, FAVORITES, PLAYLIST, COMMON CORE, MY CLOUD, HELP, and CONTACT US. Below this is a 'Categories' section and a search bar labeled 'TumbleSearch'. The main content area features a book titled 'Fifty Below Zero' by Robert Munsch. To the left of the book cover is a list of interactive options: Read online, Add to favorites, Add to playlist, Games, Quizzes, Lesson Plans, and Book Report. To the right of the cover is a 'Book Details' box containing author, illustrator, publisher, reading time, level, and core standards information. Below the book details is a 'You may also like:' section displaying five other book covers: 'The Fire Station', 'The Night I Followed The Dog', 'I HAVE TO GO!', 'MOIRA'S BIRTHDAY', and 'If I Were YOU'. The footer contains copyright information for TumbleBooks Inc. and social media icons for Facebook and Twitter.

Addison Addley and the Things That Aren't There

It's just that I choose not to waste my brain on school stuff. Personally, I think I've got more common sense than anybody I know, except for the guy at the gas station where I buy my worms. He's got to be pretty smart to make people pay for those slimy creatures. I'd probably make a great worm seller.

If I could think of a really great topic, I might be able to just make up the speech right while I was saying it. No sense wasting energy, I told myself as I brushed my teeth. Let me get that straight. I wasn't really brushing them, just giving them a quick scrape and then pretending they were clean. Sometimes I just let the water run and then I spit as loudly as I can into the sink to make it sound like I'm brushing them. I always pay for it at the next trip to the dentist though. Things have a disgusting way of catching up to you. In the back of my mind I knew I should be brushing longer. But that's where the thought usually stays – in the very back of my mind, where it belongs. This was definitely going to be a quick-scrape day.

I spit one more time and closed my eyes, trying to force a quarter of my brain into action.

"Breakfast!" Mom called from downstairs.

Saved by the yell. That was enough work for now anyway. Little did I know that by the time breakfast was over, I'd have my incredible topic. And how was I to know that, like dirty teeth, fractions have a disgusting way of catching up to you?
